SYDNEY BRANCH.
Agents—Messrs. Smith and Campbell.
Bankers—The Bank of Australasia.
Solicitors—Messrs. Carr, Rogers, and Owen.
Surveyor—James Hume, Esq.

The Agents for this Office have now much pleasure in announcing that, in pursuance of the recommendation which they forwarded to London, in November last, the Court of Directors have agreed to a greatly reduced scale of premiums, by which FIRST CLASS RISKS will now be taken at TEN SHILLINGS PER £100 PER ANNUM, instead of twenty-one shillings as heretofore.

Persons insuring in the Imperial Insurance Company, enjoy the following important advantages:—

1. PERFECT SECURITY. The large amount of the paid up and invested Capital of the Company, (upwards of ONE MILLION FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING), the wealth and respectability of its Shareholders, afford the most perfect guarantee to the public of its stability.

2. VALID POLICIES.—In order to give the most perfect guaranty to the public of the validity of the policies granted by the Sydney Branch, the Agents are enabled to state that they are now in possession of special powers from the London Directors, to affix to each policy the names of any three of their number (to be selected by the assured), which number is binding on the Company under the Deed of Settlement: thus making the policies issued here as valid and effectual as if granted at the Head Office in London.

3. REDUCED PREMIUMS.—Considering the amount of security possessed by parties insuring in this Company; the classification of the Buildings; and the absence of any liability by the assured; the premiums charged by this Office are less than have ever before been offered to the colonial public.

4. PROMPT ADJUSTMENT OF LOSSES.—The Agents being fully authorised and instructed to that effect, all losses arising under their Policies will be promptly adjusted and paid in Sydney.

5. LOSSES BY LIGHTNING MADE GOOD.—See No. 3 of the printed Conditions of Insurance.

SCALE OF PREMIUMS.

FIRST CLASS RISKS.

Buildings constructed of brick or stone, according to the Building Act, and covered with slates, tiles, or metals, and detached or separated so as not to be affected by their contiguity to any other buildings	10s. per cent. per annum.
Buildings constructed and covered as above, but joined to other buildings not being of a hazardous nature	12s. 6d. ditto

SECOND CLASS.

Buildings constructed according to the Act, and covered with shingles, but detached or separated so as not to be affected by their contiguity to any other buildings	15s. ditto
Buildings constructed and covered as above, but joined to others not being of a hazardous nature....	17s. 6d. ditto

THIRD CLASS.

Buildings of stud work, brick nogged, and slated, but separated by a proper space from, so as not to be affected by, any other adjoining buildings	20s. ditto
Buildings constructed as above, but joined to other buildings of a superior class, with proper party walls between	22s. 6d. ditto

MEMO.—Houses properly built of stone or brick, and covered with slates or shingles, but sufficiently detached, or separated by proper party walls from other buildings, will be deemed 1st and 2nd class, though not in all respects constructed according to the Building Act.

GOODS deposited in the above, and not being hazardous, will be insured at the same rate as the buildings.

Hazardous, and all other Risks not comprised in the above, will be subject to special arrangement, according to the particular circumstances of each case.

HAZARDOUS GOODS.—Such as cotton, flax, hemp, oil, rosin, saltpetre, spirits, tallow, tar, and turpentine.

HAZARDOUS TRADES.—Bread and biscuit bakers, carpenters, chemists, coachmakers, coopers, distillers, liquor and spirit shops, oilmen, printers, ship and boat builders, and the like.

Parties wishing to effect Insurances are requested to apply (between the hours of 9 and 4, daily,) at the Office 555, George-street, next door to the Bank of Australasia.

SYDNEY FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.
Chairman:—MR. T. W. SMART.
Deputy Chairman:—MR. CHARLES KEMP.
Directors:—
MR. THOMAS HOLT, JUN.
MR. ROBERT PORTER.
MR. R. M. ROBEY.
MR. W. R. SCOTT.
Surveyor:—MR. JAMES HUME.
Secretary:—MR. GEORGE KING.

THE attention of the public is called to the advantages of insuring their property in the above Company, established on the 18th October, 1844, for the mutual indemnification of its members, under certain limitations, against loss or damage by fire.

In addition to the recent alterations in the Deed of Settlement, among the most important of which may be considered the repeal of the Average Clause,—the Directors, encouraged by the uninterrupted success that has hitherto attended the operations of this Company, and which has fully borne out the expectations of the founders thereof, as to the soundness of its principles, have, in virtue of the powers vested in them, reduced the rate of Entrance Fee from ½ per cent. to ten shillings only, upon every policy; and have also decided upon making a return of premium upon the renewal of policies, as specified below.

ADVANTAGES OF INSURING IN THIS COMPANY.

1st. Participation in a division of net profits (after reserving a fund of £10,000,) and the interest in the Capital of the Company, to which the assured are entitled.

2nd. Low rates of premium.

3rd. Ample security to the assured, considering the average amount of losses sustained by fire.

4th. The limited liability of the members, being, in the most extreme cases that could possibly occur, confined to four times the amount of the annual premium paid by each member respectively.

5th. The repeal of the average clause.

6th. The repeal of the 22nd clause of the Deed of Settlement, by which repeal the transfer of policies is made valid.

7th. The provision of the 57th clause, stipulating that the funds of the Company shall be invested in Government securities only, and that no portion shall be at any time employed in discounting private bills or notes.

8th. No extra charge on insurances effected or six or three months.

9th. LOSSES BY LIGHTNING ARE MADE GOOD.

10th. The benefit to the public in general, as well as to the members, as a means of retaining within the colony thousands of pounds which would annually be drained from it to enrich bodies of absent proprietors in the mother country.

Finally, while directing the attention of the public to the advantages, it may not be improper to state, that under a continuance of favourable auspices for a few years, such as have hitherto attended this company, and with a rapidly accumulating fund, the expense of insuring will be very trifling to those who continue insurers.

RATES OF PREMIUM AND CLASSIFICATION OF BUILDINGS.

SECTION A.

FIRST CLASS.—All stone or brick buildings, covered with slates, tiles, zinc, or tin, detached ten feet from any other building, when there is a parapet or party wall, or fourteen feet when the eaves project,
From 8s. to 10s. per cent. per annum.

SECOND CLASS.—Other stone or brick buildings, covered with slates, tiles, zinc, or tin,
From 10s. to 15s. per cent. per annum.

SECTION B.

FIRST CLASS.—Buildings of stone or brick, covered with shingles, detached from any other building twelve feet, when there is a parapet or party wall, or eighteen feet when the eaves project,
From 10s. to 15s. per cent. per annum.

From 13s. to 18s. per cent. per annum.

MR MORT'S PRODUCE SALE.
MR. MORT

BEGS to inform the Woolgrowers Merchants, and others of the Colony interested in the Sale of Wool, Tallow, &c., that he intends, during the ensuing season, to hold auction sales of Produce
EVERY WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY,
In lieu of Saturday only, as heretofore.

In soliciting a continuance of the support which his weekly sales have received, Mr. Mort would call attention to the very low scale of charges now adopted, and further to the fact, that from the competition created by the attendance of all classes of buyers, this mode of sale possesses advantages over any other, and at all times ensures the extreme market rates of the day; besides enabling the settler to close his transactions on an average within twenty-four hours of the arrival of his wool and tallow.

The Stores at the rear of his rooms will be always open to receive produce, but wool intended for Wednesday's sale must be delivered on or before Tuesday, and that for Saturday not later than Friday, in order to give proper time for arrangement and inspection.

N.B.—Mr. Mort will be happy to make cash advances on receipt of the wool into store, and also to purchase supplies for the return teams if required. 7176

TO SETTLERS AND OTHERS INTERESTED IN THE SALE OF COLONIAL PRODUCE.

MR. R. FAWCETT, Auctioneer and Commission Agent, George-street, Sydney, opposite the Barrack Gate, begs respectfully to inform settlers and others that he will sell by auction
WOOL, TALLOW, HIDES, STOCK, AND OTHER COLONIAL PRODUCE, AT A COMMISSION OF ONE PER CENT.

After the experience of the two past seasons, R. F. need not point out the superiority of this mode of sale over that of sale by private contract, the result having fully borne out an advance of from 10 to 15 per cent.

Commodious Stores for the reception of colonial produce until the day of sale.

Cash advances made immediately on the receipt of produce, and supplies furnished, if required.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will be closed at the Post Office as follows:—

For Auckland.—By the Avoca, on Wednesday evening, at 6.

For England.—By the Rajah, on Friday evening, at 6.

For Moreton Bay.—By the Tamar, on Thursday evening, at 6.

For Adelaide.—By the Dorset, on Tuesday evening, 20th instant, at 6.

The Bombay has had a very long passage from Greenock, having been 161 days out; this may be attributed to her being so very tender that a sufficient press of canvas could not be set, as the latter part of her cargo which was shipped consisted principally of dead weight, which was stowed between decks. After landing the goods consigned to persons in Sydney, she will proceed on to Port Phillip, as a considerable portion of the cargo is for that place. A passenger (Mr. W. Macfarlane) died on the passage out, from scurvy.

The Industry left Hobart Town on the 11th September, and has taken since then 10 barrels of sperm oil. She has put in through stress of weather, and will most probably resume her voyage to-day. Since leaving Hobart Town, she has not spoken any other whalers.

CAPTAIN STOKES'S DISCOVERIES.

In various articles upon the northern parts of New Holland, directed as they have been, in part, to illustration of the discoveries of Leichhardt, we have called the attention of our brother-colonists to the vast fields for enterprise and labour, at present unoccupied, which are merely awaiting the processes of occupation and culture to furnish an abundant increase to our national wealth.

Our inducement now to return to the subject is twofold. Leichhardt has again set forth upon his exploration, and is already many miles from Sydney, in his progress towards his new destination, and the result of Captain Stokes's discoveries is just come into our hands. As much that is contained in the work of the latter gentleman, independent of its positive value, is of relative use to us in appreciating the energy and truthfulness of the former, we propose, therefore, to examine some of the contents of Captain Stokes's volumes.* It may also be of service to Dr. Leichhardt, should he be able, which we think he will before he quits the settled districts, to get sight of our columns, to see how encouragingly (as it were) for the future, Captain Stokes confirms what he has already published respecting that part of his route which bordered on the ground investigated by the enthusiastic commander of the Beagle.

In order to carry out our views, we shall not observe any consecutive order in our notice of the work before us, but refer at once to such portions of it as bear on the subject of our anxieties.

The first fact deserving of our notice is, to use Captain Stokes's words, that either in the Percy Islands or the Northumberland Islands (lat. 21 S., not more than 360 miles due north of Moreton Bay,) "sandal-wood has been found of late and taken by a Tasmanian vessel to the China market." If this be the case, we have a valuable article of commerce much more easily accessible than was supposed

It has been suggested that the River Burdekin, which, by its continuation into the Clarke, must drain the water of the Carpentaria ranges, disembogues somewhere near Halifax Bay; and the officers of H.M.S. Fly spoke often of a river entering the ocean close to Cape Upstart, and but a few miles to the southward of the Bay.

As this is a point of some importance, we will quote Captain Stokes's words—

"On sweeping the western shore with a spyglass, I discovered the mouth of a river about a mile to the north of a hillock marked in Captain King's chart. This river was made the object of an exploring party, and next day, Captain Wickham and Lieutenant Eden went on that interesting service. It has two entrances, both very shallow, and is of little importance, being on a lee-shore and fronted by a bar, which seems to break at all times of the tide. However, as there is such very safe anchorage near, the discovery may hereafter prove of some value. Captain Wickham found it fresh ten miles from the entrance, but at that point it is nearly lost in the sands, and so very shallow that the natives have a fishing weir across it. The land, which appears to be much cut up with creeks, is very flat on both sides, and is subject to inundations. This was evident from the signs of drift, to the height of six feet, on the trees that grew along the banks, themselves not more than a couple of yards above high water mark." (Vol. I., p. 330.)

Of Halifax Bay, the author remarks but little. But he sums up what he has to say in very significant terms. "It is the general opinion of every voyager who has sailed along the coast of Halifax Bay, that it is the most interesting portion of the north-east side of the continent, as combining the several facts which we have above given." [These are the picturesque character of the mountainous termination of the Cordillera, as the dividing ranges are now called, the signs of abundant native population, &c.] "We have every reason to believe that the discovery of fertile and therefore valuable land will one day reward the labours of the explorer."

It is to Halifax Bay that we have always pointed as the centre of location of a new colony, as being fairly within the tropic, commanding the quiet waters inside the Great Barrier, and so well situated with respect to the York Peninsula, the Gulf of Carpentaria, and the splendid country discovered by Leichhardt to the southward of the Burdekin. Our impression is so strong on this point, that we would venture to suggest that the Legislative Council should take up the subject, appoint a Committee to enquire and report, and then petition the Home Government to colonize that interesting district. It was not far from Halifax Bay, in lat. 19·54, that Leichhardt found a fine limestone; and his general account of the country westward of the coast confirms all our conjectures as to its available character.

As we have no alternative, we must now pass at once to the country bounding the Gulf of Carpentaria, where many important discoveries were made by Captain Stokes.

This author remarks, as Leichhardt has done, on the abundance of rivers and creeks which flow into the gulf; on the fineness of the country for grazing purposes; on the abundance of wild fowl and birds of all kinds, and on the peculiarities of temperature, and of the coolness of the wind. Amongst the rivers mentioned by Leichhardt is the Yappar, which he afterwards considered as the Flinders of Captain Stokes. He made it in lat. 17·49, where it was salt; and he gives the long. 140·45 E. Captain Stokes lays down the Flinders in lat. 17·36 to 17·52, and in long. 140·40. Leichhardt, therefore, passed the Flinders near the spot where Stokes ceased his exploration As Captain Stokes ascended the river thus far in a boat, the natives, one of whose dead was found by him laid out in a tree, must have been acquainted with Europeans; and we find Leichhardt in his report stating, "the country is well inhabited by black-fellows; we had three times intercourse with them—the third time (at the Yappar) they were very friendly, and it was evident they had seen either Malays or white men before us." As Leichhardt could not follow down to the mouths any of the rivers he crossed, and it may be interesting to our readers to know what is the nature of those rivers, we will borrow an account of the Flinders or Yappar from Stokes. He places its mouth in 17·36·40 S., and long 138·27 E. of Port Essington. A channel of two feet through the flat at low water marks the entrance. The river has near its entrance a depth of from three to five fathoms, with a breadth of about 120 yards, and is well marked from the offing by abundance of trees dotted on the low grounds. The tides occur only once in twenty-four hours, a phenomenon common to the gulf. The upward course of the rivers was southerly, with tortuous snake-like reaches. Numerous banks impeded the course and reduced the depth; plains dotted with trees or dense jungle, filled with vampyres (Query, "flying foxes?" one of Leichhardt's dainties,) and whistling ducks alternated beyond the water's edge. About twelve miles from the mouth sunken trees were numerous, indicating "how fierce a torrent had borne them thither." Fine sheets of limpid water, low grassy islets, native shrubberies, and sandy beaches; with grassy banks sloping into the stream, and masses of luxuriant creepers, were the general features. An engraving represents a beautiful scene at the spot where the dead body was found. The ground here was higher than the country in general, perhaps thirty-five feet in elevation above the sea; the plains were covered by rose-coloured cockatoos. Beyond Burial Reach the river bifurcates, one branch trending easterly. The furthest position was thirty miles from the entrance, in lat. 17·51, or just two miles above where Leichhardt crossed one of the branches.

Abundance of smoke and fire marked the presence of natives.

It is really delightful to see how accurately Captain Stokes's account tallies with that of our enterprising friend, now again on the wide ocean of adventure.

In our further notices of the work before us, we shall have other examples of his fidelity to record, and we are sure it will be gratifying to his friends throughout the colony to know that though his means were limited, he was enabled to make observations which have been confirmed by an eminent nautical surveyor, and that his accounts of the country are by no means exaggerated. These facts, in themselves valuable, have a further value. They justify the claim for strict regard to truth, which Leichhardt's character has established with those who know him, and will be the best guarantee of his reputation against all questioners.

In his Report he mentions that he passed between the Yappar (Flinders) 140 45 E. approx., and the Nicholson 138 55 E., which river he crossed in 138·55 S., "three big salt water rivers, one fine running creek, which I called Beames's Brook, and several chains of fresh water lagoons."

It was a subject of some surprise when we first read Leichhardt's account, that we found no mention of the Albert River, the discovery of which by Stokes made some noise at the time, as it was said to have led him to within 400 miles of the centre of the continent.

On comparing his map with our friend's journal, we find apparently the greatest accuracy; and there is no doubt that Beames's Brook of Leichhardt is the head of one branch of the Albert of Stokes; and this fact shows the extreme skill and judgment with which the intrepid traveller seems to have calculated his distances.

Although we cannot now allude to the Albert further, yet we cannot resist comparing the statements of the two explorers. Beames's Brook was crossed by Leichhardt in 17·57 S., where it was, he says, "twenty yards broad; its water was fresh, but affected by the tide. At the crossing place, (about eight miles lower down) it was three yards broad, very deep in some places, shallow in others, a full flowing little stream, with magnificent oak trees, and palms, and pandanus, and flooded gum, along its banks. We never had met, nor did we meet another brook like it again."

"Holding," says Stokes, speaking of the Albert, "our west course, we made the river again at the end of another mile. Its size was reduced to a mere rivulet, being scarcely fifteen yards wide, with a depth of five feet. Yet it had a greater velocity than we had before observed, running at the rate of a mile an hour, a clear babbling brook, over which acacias and drooping gums formed a leafy tunnel; its course was still from the south." "My position was in lat. 17·58½ S., and long. 139·25 E." Consequently, Leichhardt crossed the Albert about one and a-half mile distant from Stokes's furthest point, just as he had crossed the Flinders in the same manner.

The "three big salt water rivers" seem not to be so clearly made out in the chart of the southern part of the gulf; but Disaster Inlet, Morning Inlet, and the salt water arm of the Albert to the eastward, may be the three sites of Leichhardt's rivers. If this arrangement be correct, then the River Nicholson must disembogue at Pascoe's Inlet. Leichhardt gives the breadth of the salt water rivers as 150, 200, and 300 yards. Now Stokes says the Albert varied in breadth from 200 to 250 yards; an accidental testimony of another kind to Leichhardt's general accuracy. We shall have somewhat to say about the Albert hereafter.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

1. Mr. Bland to move (in reference to the Despatch of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State, of date 30th of April, 1846, respecting the revival of Transportation to this colony) that an address be presented to His Excellency the Governor, requesting that His Excellency will be pleased to state, for the information of the Right Honorable the Secretary for the Colonies, that this Council are of opinion that the system of Transportation might be renewed on the following conditions as a basis:

(1.) That it be accompanied with the private assignment of convicts as hitherto, or with such other modifications as may be agreed upon.

(2.) That for each convict landed in the colony, the home Government engage to land, at its own expense, in the colony, within the period of two years from his being landed, two male or female emigrants, between the ages of and , with such excess of female emigrants as may be necessary in order to preserve a due proportion between the sexes.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

1. Captain O'Connell to move, That an Address be present to his Excellency the Governor, requesting that his Excellency will be pleased to urge upon the attention of Her Majesty's Government, through her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the anomalous position, with regard to political rights, held by the licensed occupiers of Crown Lands in this colony, who—subjects of Great Britain by birth—colonists of a portion of her dominions to which the right of Government by representation has been formally conceded—and holders of property to the extent in value of fully one-half of the productive capital of the colony they inhabit—are yet taxed without representation, and legislated for in this Council without having any voice in the election of its members;—and that his Excellency will be further pleased to recommend to her Majesty's Government the adoption of such measures as may be deemed best calculated to obviate this unconstitutional grievance, and to covert what are now Licenses to occupy Crown Lands from year to year, into such other usual and more permanent tenure, as will, under proper restrictions for the public benefit, and without danger from undue influence on that constitutional right, carry with it a legal claim to the benefit of the elective franchise.

CONTINGENT ORDERS OF THE DAY.

1. Division of Legal Profession Abolition Bill; second reading—on the day following the presentation of the Report from the Committee thereon.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

Friday.

Before His Honor the Chief Justice.

CATTLE-STEALING.

David Cross was indicted for having, at Hungry Flat, on the 9th of June last, stolen a heifer the property of John Ferguson.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Messrs. Windeyer and Holroyd.

The Solicitor-General having stated the case, proceeded to call the prosecutor, Mr. John Ferguson, who stated that he had a number of cattle running at Hungry Flat, and at the time mentioned in the information, having reason to believe that some of these cattle had been driven away, he followed up a track which he found running from that direction towards Wiseman's Ferry, where the prisoner resided. Previous to this, the prosecutor had called in the assistance of Mr. Fleming, the Chief Constable of the Macdonald River district, and they went together to the house of the prisoner. They first enquired if he had seen any cattle pass, and he replied in the negative; but afterwards stated that some of the children had seen a man (whom he then named) go down the river with four or five head. As a beast was hanging up in the yard which had recently been slaughtered, the hide of the animal was inquired for and produced. Cross said that the animal had been obtained by him from a man named Jeffries, and that if it was branded at all it must be branded JJ. On examining the hide, however, the letter I, being the remains of a brand, was discovered, and a similar letter below it; this corresponding in some degree with the brand of the prosecutor, whose cattle were doubly marked with the letters IF, one pair of letters being placed over the other. The brand was near the edge, and on fitting the branding iron to it at a subsequent time, a small part of the letter was found to correspond with a mark on the hide. A piece of the hide had been cut out, which the prisoner said had been taken for the purpose of fastening on a flail for the use of the farm. After having had a communication with his son, the prisoner said that he had made a mistake as to the brand, the beast having been marked IJ instead of JJ. Mr. Ferguson saw, in passing the door, the head of a beast upon the table, which was familiar to him, and upon making a subsequent search on his run he missed an eighteen months' old heifer, corresponding in appearance with the beast which had been found at Cross's. From all these circumstances Ferguson stated that he was enabled to swear positively as to the animal being one of his own.

On cross-examination the prosecutor admitted that on being spoken to with reference to an abandonment as a compromise of the matter, he had remarked that if he adopted such a course, Cross would bring an action against him in the Supreme Court. He also admitted that there had been no attempt to conceal either the carcass, the hide or the head; and that the house of the prisoner was close to the ferry where the passengers went by. The prosecutor likewise stated that on approaching the prisoner's house he met the son of the latter on the main road with several head of cattle, but among these cattle he saw none of his (the prosecutor's) own.

The evidence of Mr. Ferguson was confirmed by that of Chief Constable Fleming, who stated in addition that the prisoner had promised to produce the piece which had been cut out of the hide, but failed to do so, stating that it had been left on a dray, and had been carried away by the dogs. On cross-examination, this witness also stated that there had been no attempt at concealment, and that the prisoner, who was a native of the colony, and had resided there for many years, had always borne a good character for honesty; although he had the reputation of being a little litigious. Additional evidence of identity was given by three stockmen, who stated positively that the hide and head corresponded with those of the missing heifer. It was likewise stated that the carcass appeared to weigh about three cwt., and it appeared that the hair had so far grown over the brand as to render it illegible until the place was shaved, although according to the statement of the witnesses it had only been branded about two months before.

The case for the Crown having been closed,

Mr. Windeyer proceeded to address the jury for the defence, commenting upon the evidence which had already been given, and which, he contended, was wholly insufficient to justify a conviction. He added, however, that in order to place the matter beyond a doubt, he should be able to adduce evidence from which it would appear clear that the animal belonged to Cross himself.

The two sons of the prisoner were then called, and a man named John Jeffers or Jeffreys, who deposed that the heifer in dispute was one which Jeffers had given the prisoner's eldest son, as a gift to Cross's grandchild after it had been born. One of the sons also swore that he drove the beast to his father's stockyard as his own property; that after it was slaughtered, as one of the men about the place wanted a piece of green hide, witness cut out the brand as being the least valuable part of the hide and gave it to him. A man named William Faulkner also deposed that the heifer in question was well known to him; that the same animal had been accustomed to run with the cattle belonging to the prisoner and his family. Messrs. James and John Doyle, Samuel North, J.P., Francis Beddek, John Odell, George Jilks, and several other persons were called, one and all of whom gave the prisoner a very high character for honesty ever since they had known him, some of them for twenty years.

The Solicitor-General having replied to the evidence for the defence, by calling the attention of the Jury to the relationship that subsisted between the prisoner and his two sons, His Honor put the case to the Jury, leaving it to them to consider, that, according to the evidence, if they believed the prosecutor, the prisoner's two sons and Jeffreys must have committed perjury; but it did not follow that if they acquitted the prisoner a similar charge would lie against the prosecutor

The Jury then retired to consider their verdict.

CHARGE OF HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Nicholas Hatfield, holding a ticket-of-leave for the district of Liverpool, and Thomas Hatfield, free, belonging to the same district, were indicted for having assaulted and robbed James Meek, on the night of the 2nd July last, at Pudding Hill, on the Liverpool Road. According to the evidence of the prosecutor, he was an oysterman and fish dealer in Parramatta. On the day laid in the information, he had been to Liverpool with his horse and cart and a quantity of fish, which he sold, and was returning home with the proceeds, about 13s., when the two men came up, stopped him, rifled his pockets, and took from him 13s. in silver, and some coppers; they also took his hawker's license, which he urged them to return, without effect The men who robbed him were like the prisoners, but as it was about ten o'clock at night, he could not see them distinctly. Soon after they had quitted him he went in search of a constable, when two men whom he believed to be the prisoners again came up to him, and both spoke to him, when he discovered that one of them had an impediment in his speech; after they had again gone away, he got a constable, and describing them to him, by saying that one of them had an impediment in his speech, the constable proceeded to the prisoners' hut, and apprehended them: no money was found on them.

Mr. Holroyd addressed the Jury for the prisoners, contending that as the prosecutor had not sworn positively to them as the persons who had robbed him, and also because he did not recognise one of them at the time of the robbery, as having an impediment in his speech, that therefore the prisoners ought to be acquitted, especially as the prosecutor had stated that at the time of the robbery he could neither distinguish their features nor their dress. He afterwards called several witnesses, who gave both the prisoners good characters.

His Honor having left it to the Jury to give the prisoners the benefit of any doubts they might have as to their identity,

The Jury retired for about a quarter of an hour, and returned a verdict of not guilty, on which both the prisoners were discharged.

His Honor, after waiting for some time, sent to ascertain whether the Jury in Cross's case were prepared to return a verdict, and was answered that they were not agreed, As it was close upon seven o'clock, two constables were sworn in to keep the Jury in charge till next day at ten o'clock, after which moderate refreshments, without spirits, being allowed to be given to such of the Jurors as required it, they were locked up. His Honor after giving directions that if they agreed on a verdict before eleven o'clock, that he and the Clerk of the Court was to be sent for, to take the same.

His Honor left the Court room at 7 P.M., for his own residence. At half-past eleven, P.M. the Jury again returned to the Court, and being still unable to agree, they were, by the consent of the Solicitor-General and the prisoner's counsel, discharged without verdict, upon the understanding, that the case would not again be presented.

Saturday.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Therry.

HORSE STEALING.

George Holwell alias George Holloway was indicted for having, at the Pennant Hills, on the 1st of April last, stolen a mare, the property of Richard Webb.

It appeared from the evidence that the animal alleged to have been stolen, a black mare, was missed from the place where she had been running, at Pennant Hills, about the time mentioned in the information, and in the month of May following she was shown to be in the possession of the prisoner, who exchanged her with one Clark Hewson for a horse. The mare was branded RW on the near shoulder, but the brand was illegible; and at the time of the exchange, she was represented by the prisoner as having been branded SN. As the brand looked as much like SN as anything else, Hewson took it for granted that the prisoner's account was correct. In the month of June, Hewson exchanged this mare for another, and after she had been in the possession of this third person for some time, she strayed away with a strange mare, and returned to her old run. Mr. Webb, on recovering possession of the mare, put her in the pound until she was claimed by the person in whose possession she had last been, by which means the first unlawful possession of her was traced to the prisoner. The prisoner had represented the mare as his own property, and stated that she had been running at Emu Plains.

The prisoner's defence was, that the mare which he had disposed of to Hewson, was not the one claimed by Mr. Webb, but a mare branded SN, which was his own property.

His Honor having summed up, the Jury, without leaving the box, found the prisoner guilty; and the Chief Constable of Parramatta being examined, it appeared that the prisoner bore a very bad character, and had the reputation of a horse-stealer. He was then sentenced to three years' labour in irons on the public roads.

SHEEP-STEALING.

Robert Jones, who had been convicted of sheep-stealing, with a recommendation to mercy from the Jury, was sentenced to be worked in irons on the public roads for the space of twelve months.

RAPE.

John Gregory was indicted for having, at the Parramatta Road, on the 12th of August last, violated the person of one Catherine King, alias Catherine Rochester.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Lowe.

The assault, which was a very gross one, was clearly established by the evidence of the prosecutrix, a girl eleven years of age; but the capital offence did not appear to have been committed.

The Jury, under His Honor's direction, found the prisoner guilty of an assault, with intent to commit a rape, and he was then remanded for sentence.

STEALING FROM THE PERSON.

William Smith was indicted for having, at Sydney, on the 13th of September last, stolen a pocket book and a £12 cheque from the person of one Hugh Wallace.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Holroyd.

The case against the prisoner was a very plain one; the prosecutor was on the day in question at the Fancy Bazaar, held at the Royal Hotel, when the prisoner was seen to walk close behind him, in company with a female, and to move his hand quickly, as if he had taken something from the pocket of Mr. Wallace, and handed it to his companion. The lady by whom this was seen informed Mr. Wallace, and the latter found upon searching his pocket that the pocket book was gone. The prisoner and his companion were accordingly given into custody, and the pocket book itself was found about a quarter of an hour afterwards, near where the prisoner had stood, with its contents untouched.

Mr. Holroyd briefly addressed the Jury, commenting strongly upon the absence of any positive proof as to the prisoner's guilt, and upon a slight discrepancy in the evidence as to the pocket from which the pocket-book had been taken.

The Jury, after having retired for about ten minutes, found the prisoner guilty, and he was remanded for sentence.

MURDER.

James Cumberland was indicted for having, on the 29th of September, 1846, wilfully murdered his wife, Ann Cumberland, by beating and kicking her, thereby inflicting certain mortal wounds, bruises, and contusions, from the effects of which the said Ann Cumberland instantly died.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Purefoy.

It appeared by the evidence, that on the morning of the day mentioned in the information, the deceased, who was a woman of very dissipated habits, had been fined 30s. at the Police Office for drunkenness, and had paid the fine. After this she went to the door of a person who lived in the adjoining house to her own, but the person sent her away, being apprehensive that her husband would come there, and would accuse him of having abetted her misconduct. Some time after this she was seen in a beastly state of intoxication in front of another neighbour's house, who brought her over, and placed her in her own verandah near the door. When she had been there some time the prisoner came out and kicked her, calling her at the same time by an opprobious epithet. After she had got inside the house, where the prisoner afterwards dragged her by the shoulders, the prisoner was heard to ask the deceased for the key, and to declare that she should never sleep in the house again; and the woman was twice heard to cry out in a voice between a scream and a groan, "Oh, you wretch." About half an hour after this the prisoner came into the house of his next door neighbour, Mr. Hayward, and said that his wife was dead, upon which Mr. Hayward and several others went in. They found the deceased in a reclining position quite dead, surrounded by a pool of blood, and there was a great deal of blood about the place. From the nature of these sanguinary traces, it appeared as if the woman had been dragged from the bed-room to the back part of the premises. One of the witnesses for the Crown deposed to having heard the prisoner say "You drunken b—, I'll have your life," and it was stated that some ashes had been thrown into one of the pools of blood, as if for the purpose of concealment. The prisoner denied having done anything to deprive the woman of life, but he said to one of the witnesses. "I hope you will be as easy with me as you can." The prisoner was a butcher, and it appeared that although a very industrious man; he was himself addicted to drinking, and had come home in a state of intoxication some time before the fatal occurrence alluded to; but in the opinion of the witness, Hayward, had so far recovered from its effects as to be conscious of what he was diong at the time he kicked his wife. Another of the Crown witnesses heard the prisoner turning the deceased out at the back door, and heard the latter say, "Oh, Jemmy, don't strike me any more."

When the alarm was given, a surgeon was sent for by the consent of the prisoner, and Mr. Patrick Glissan, a surgeon practising at Penrith, arrived shortly afterwards. This gentleman gave testimony in a very clear and distinct manner, as to the injuries received by the deceased, and the cause of her death. The substance of this gentleman's testimony was that death had been occasioned by injuries to the womb and lower parts of the body, caused apparently by a severe kick while she was in a sitting posture. The deceased was at the time in an advanced state of pregnancy, and which rendered her more liable to injury. On cross-examination, the surgeon stated that the extensive hemorrhage might, by possibility, be produced by a fall while in a state of intoxication; but he was decidedly of opinion that it was caused by the same violence which produced certain lacerations that he observed on her person.

Mr. Purefoy addressed the jury at some length, commenting upon the evidence which had been given for the Crown, and contending that there was not in this case any sufficient evidences of malice to justify a verdict of wilful murder, and that the verdict must at all events be reduced to one of manslaughter only; but as the hemorrhage, which caused the unfortunate woman's death, might have been caused by a fall from the bed, or some other injury consequent upon her drunkenness, it was quite possible that her death might not have been caused by any act of her husband's; although, in the natural excitement and indignation to which the woman's bad conduct had given rise, he might not only have threatened her, but might have been guilty of some violence towards her.

The Jury, without requiring His Honor to sum up, found the prisoner guilty of manslaughter, and he was remanded for sentence.

Monday.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson.

WOUNDING WITH INTENT TO MURDER.

Patrick Bailey, was indicted for having, at the Nepean, on the 19th of September last, maliciously fired at and wounded one Donald Beatson, with intent to murder him. A second count of the information charged the prisoner with having wounded Beatson, with intent to do him some grievous bodily harm.

The prosecution was conducted by the Solicitor General; and the defence by Mr. Fisher.

It appeared, from the evidence, that Donald Beatson, the person alleged to have been fired at by the prisoner, was overseer at the estate of Shankamore, in the possession of Mr. Henry Hughes; and the prisoner resided as tenant on a small portion of land on the adjoining estate of Vermont, belonging to Mr. W. C. Wentworth. A dispute as to the boundary line of the two estates had existed for some time between the two proprietors, and on the day named in the information the prisoner was employed in putting up a fence at the disputed line, when Beatson, with two other men and a boy, went to the place armed with axes, and commenced knocking it down. According to the testimony of the witnesses for the Crown, Beatson told the prisoner as he approached, that they were coming to help him with the fence, upon which the latter, anticipating what kind of help they were going to give him, threatened to get his gun and "drive balls through them;" he accordingly went to his hut and came out with the gun in his hand, which he levelled at the party. After standing for some time with the gun to his shoulder, he advanced some distance nearer, and resting the gun on the top of a post, he took aim at the prosecutor and fired. The gun was loaded with that kind of shot called duck shot, No. 2, and the prosecutor was wounded in the breast, arms, and chin, in fifteen different places. Fourteen of these wounds drew blood, but were none of them very severe, although two or three shots still remained unextracted. The prisoner put his hands in his pockets as if he was about to load again, when the party rushed at him and secured him. In the course of securing the prisoner, the latter was struck twice with the gun, the first blow falling on his shoulder and the second on his head; and one of these blows was inflicted with so much force as to break the stock of the weapon. By the admissions which were made by the Crown witnesses on cross-examination, it was shown that the disputed land, which comprised about six acres, had been in the possession of a person named Donough since 1842, in which year it was cleared by him; but that although Donough had sown several crops there, he had never been able to reap any, as they were always carried away or destroyed by the Shankamore people. An action had been brought in the Supreme Court upon one of these trespasses by Donough, and the case having been tried in May last, they latter obtained a verdict for £25; but notwithstanding this determination of the question, the claim was still kept up.

Mr Fisher addressed the Jury at some length, contending that the violence of Beatson and his party in their wanton trespass upon the fence, which formed the boundary of the prisoner's own garden, and the whole nature of their conduct, was such as to warrant him in anticipating an attack upon himself; so that he had consequently either discharged the gun in pure self-defence, or in the excitement and trepidation of the moment.

Witnesses were called for the defence, who proved that the disputed land was really a part of the Vermont Estate—that the prisoner, who was an old and feeble man, had always borne an excellent character, and that he had suffered greatly from the injuries on the head which he had received from the hands of Beatson.

His Honor briefly summed up, telling the Jury that the mere presentation of the gun, within gun shot range, would constitute a common assault, and that under any circumstances the prisoner, if they believed the testimony of the witnesses, had done this. If they believed that the gun had been discharged intentionally they would next have to find what was the prisoner's object in so doing, or in other words whether he meant to take life, to inflict grevious bodily injury, or merely to intimidate; as it would be open to them in this latter case to find the prisoner guilty of a common assault.

The Jury, after having retired for about half an hour, found the prisoner guilty of a common assault. He was then sentenced to be imprisoned in Sydney gaol for the space of twelve calendar months.

MANSLAUGHTER.

Catherine Mason, was indicted for killing and slaying Eliza Emily Watson, an infant two years of age. The information was a very long and special one, setting forth a continued neglect of the infant between the 2nd May, 1846, and the 2nd of October in the same year; declaring that the prisoner had neglected to furnish the infant with sufficient food, as she was bound to do; that she had exposed the child to the rain and inclemency of the weather; that she had immersed her in cold water; and that she had placed her upon burning hot bricks.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Holroyd.

The prisoner had lived in Druitt-street, and the infant whose death she was said to have caused, had been placed in her charge by the mother, in order that she might rear the child with her own family, an agreement being made that the prisoner should receive six shillings per week for her trouble, Three of the neighbours stated that they had seen the unfortunate infant receive the most severe treatment at the hands of its nurse. Among the other acts of ill treatment it had been stated that the prisoner was in the frequent habit of turning the child out naked in the rain, and of plunging it in the cold water, at the most inclement seasons. She had likewise been seen, they said, to scrape the child's person with an iron hoop, and on one occasion she had placed the child sitting upon brick, which had been heated to such an extent as to burn the lower parts of the infant's body. On cross examination these witnesses admitted that they had had differences with the prisoner, but adhered to their statements as to the conduct of the prisoner. No complaint was made to the mother until after the death of the child, but after the latter had been buried, the body was taken up and examined by Dr. Silver, who stated that there was considerable inflammation of the brain, but that the appearances could scarcely have been produced by the treatment alluded to, unless the health of the child was otherwise affected by natural causes.

Mr. Holroyd, after having addressed the Jury for the defence, called several witnesses, who stated that as far as their observation went, the prisoner, who was the mother of three children, had always treated the child in a humane and motherly manner. A certificate from W C. Wentworth, Esq., M.L.C., was also put in evidence, by the consent of the Solicitor General, in which certificate it was stated that the prisoner had been in his service for some time, and that he believed her wholly incapable of the crime with which she was charged.

His Honor summed up, reading over his notes of the evidence, and informing the Jury that it was open to them, if they believed the evidence for the Crown, but did not think that the prisoner had actually occasioned the death of the infant, to find the prisoner guilty of a common assault.

The Jury having retired for about twenty minutes, acquitted the prisoner, who was discharged.

Court adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

INCREASE OF TRAFFIC.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

MOREWOOD'S PATENT GALVANIZED TIN PLATES.

MR. GEORGE A. LLOYD has received instruction from the importer to submit by public competition, at his Rooms, City Mart, 474, George-street,
THURSDAY, 15TH INSTANT,
At eleven o'clock precisely,

90 Bundles patent galvanized tinned iron sheets, 72 x 24 and 72 x 30
4 Bundles galvanized tinned iron hoops
1 Case galvanized tinned iron nails.

This article has been in use for five years for roofs, gutters, spouting, &c., on warehouses, and dwelling-houses, in the City of New York, without the slightest appearance of rust or corrosion, although it is well known that New York, from being surrounded by the sea, possesses a remarkable saline atmosphere, which is highly destructive to tin, iron, &c.

It is also now used in all the Royal Dockyards, for roofing over the docks and public buildings; and by the Government generally in all its departments. Nearly all the splendid buildings at the termini of the various railways are roofed in with this metal, and it is also admirably adapted for sheathing the bottoms of coasting vessels.

This material possesses all the advantage of iron, without its liability to corrosion; and being scarcely at all effected by changes of temperature, does not rend or separate by expansion or contraction, nor is it liable to collapse or melt as zinc and lead do in case of fire, neither is it like zinc liable to combustion; it is admirably adapted for roofing, gutters, spouting, chimney tops, &c., in any climate, but more particularly where there is a great variation in the temperature, and as such, is a matter of importance and economy to all persons in this colony.

As regards the comparative expense of this and other metallic coverings, it will be found that the same strength does not cost more than two-thirds that of zinc, which is the cheapest metallic roofing as regards first cost at present in use.

The material benig strong, and at the same time exceedingly light, and the sheets being fastened together, tend to strengthen the building, instead of requiring any support themselves. It is scarcely necessary to add, that the timbering required is only of the very slightest description.

The whole will be sold in lots to suit purchasers.

☞ The Importer has received by the June mail, a letter from the patentees, in which they describe the demand for these plates from dockyards, railway companies, contractors, ordnance boards, and for cathedral and church roofs, to be such an increasing description, that they find the utmost difficulty in completing the orders.

Terms, liberal, at sale. 5739
